

a way forward

It is essential that Africa develops its own strategy. For many decades past, it seems our leaders and policy makers have been walking in the footsteps of others. For example: what are we doing as Africans to address the global economic crisis - are we waiting for America & the G8 to solve this?